

The Republic of India

Plenary Speech

Thank you all for being here today. The Republic of India, as one of the world's greatest democracies sees diplomatic conversations like those of the conference to be vital to International Peace and so we, as representatives of India, we wish the best of luck to all of you here today.

The issue of Iran's nuclear technology program is an important one in today's world. If we are successful at this conference, the decisions we make will shape the future of nuclear politics for years to come. For the last 65 years, the development and possession of nuclear weapons has shaped global politics. Should this conference take stand on either side of the Iran issue, the ramifications will be felt in every country in the world that desires, possess or fears nuclear vs. nuclear weapons .

India feels the absent regime of the NPT creates situations such as the one we are to discuss. In short, if nuclear weapons are illegal, only outlaws will have nuclear weapons. India is and has been strongly devoted to preventing the spread of nuclear weapons but we feel it is necessary to the security of the free world to implement a non-proliferation regime that encourages security of the free world to implement a non-proliferation that encourage responsible, safe nuclear development

Thank you,

Delegation Chair of India
